Description

The Book of Kells was described in the 11th century archival records as 'the most precious object in the western world', and its cultural and historical value has only increased since then. This Celtic manuscript has stood for 1,200 years as the greatest example of medieval illumination!

From here you will visit The Old Library at Trinity College with its world-renowned, vaulted Long Room holding 200,000 of its oldest books, many of these historic treasures. In addition see the 15th century "Brian Boru Harp", named after Ireland's famous 11th King and Warrior who serenaded his troops into battle with his musical talents as well as see an original copy of the Declaration of Irish Independence read out at the beginning of the 1916 Uprising.

The next stop on your tour is Dublin's historic heart – Dublin Castle. (The name Dublin is derived from what was once the Black Pool of the Castle (Dubh Linn). Originally built in the 13th century – on a site previously settled by the Vikings – it has been a military fortress, prison, treasury, court of law and was the seat of English power in Ireland for 700 years! Rebuilt in the 17th, 18th, 19th and 20th centuries, Dublin Castle enthalls all who enter her gates. On this fully guided exterior tour, you will stroll through the gardens viewing the original Record & Octagonal Towers as well as the Upper & Lower State Yards with their many architectural highlights.

Please book onto this tour by Monday 19th June
